

We are currently at a stage where everybody is aiming to specialize in upcoming and emerging fields, and trying to land a good job with the help of their talent and credentials. In such a scenario where everybody wants to get a job, there will probably soon be a shortage of jobs and companies who can offer them to deserving candidates. Entrepreneurship is a field where I have seen a lot of promise in terms of career advancement, both for me as well as my peers. Knowledge of how to establish and set up a company at a massive scale will allow me to follow my dreams, at the same time ensuring financial stability for me and my employees. Hence, I intend to pursue my BBA in Human Resources and Entrepreneurship, using which I will be able to think as a business owner rather than as a job seeker.

My inclination towards Entrepreneurship began since my childhood when I used to have lengthy discussions with my father, an entrepreneur himself, about the establishment of his company, Acton Biotech. My main takeaways from these discussions were the level of control and the unlimited potential of earning I could have in my company. With these thoughts as my base, I decided to study science during my higher secondary. I felt that my background in science will help me set realistic goals for my science-oriented company and decide the actions that need to be taken to achieve those goals successfully.

As my main inspiration to be an entrepreneur is my father, I have tried my best to learn from him and inculcate the qualities of discipline, dedication, and perseverance in my life. Additionally, my school education has taught me essential skills such as problem-solving, leadership, and handling pressure. I am also extremely comfortable working with computers and I have experience in conducting internet research and preparing presentations. Apart from academics, I enjoy playing basketball, which gives me some much-needed stress release and helps me focus better on my studies.

After earning my bachelors in Entrepreneurship and Human Resources, I would like to use my education and establish a company with tremendous potential for growth and contribution to my country. I believe that I have the discipline and time management skills required to start a business from scratch. Also, having served as a captain for Maharashtra's basketball team, I have learnt essential leadership and communication skills to organize and lead a team to victory.

I strongly believe that a bachelor's degree in Human Resources and Entrepreneurship from your esteemed institution will help me move one step closer to my dreams. I am particularly interested in learning about resource management, market research, and analysis. I am also interested in learning about how other big companies were established so that I can learn from their examples. My passion for the subject and my goals in life will help me stay committed to my education. I look forward to learning with your faculty and acquiring the best possible foundation through which I can fulfill my dreams in the near future.
